Informed Consent for Telehealth Services

Introduction

Telehealth involves the use of electronic communications to enable health care providers and patients at different locations to share individual patient health information for the purpose of improving patient care. Providers may include medical, behavioral health, dentists, pharmacists, or others. The information may be used for diagnosis, therapy, follow-up and/or education, and may include any of the following, but not limited to:

- Patient health records
- Health images
- Live two-way audio and video
- Output data from health devices and sound and audio files

Electronic systems used will have network and software security protocols in place to protect the confidentiality of patient identification and imaging data. It will include measures to protect the data and to ensure its integrity against unintentional corruption.

Expected Benefits

- Improved access to health care when patient and provider are not in the same location.
- More efficient health evaluation and management

Possible Risks

As with any health procedure, there are potential risks associated with the use of telehealth. These risks include, but may not be limited to:

- In rare cases, information transmitted may not be sufficient (e.g., poor resolution of images) to allow for appropriate health decision making by the physician and consultant(s);
- Delays in health evaluation and treatment could occur due to deficiencies or failures of the equipment;
- In very rare instances, security protocols could fail, causing a breach of privacy of personal health information;
- In rare cases, a lack of access to complete health records may result in adverse drug interactions or allergic reactions or other judgment errors.

I understand the risk and benefit of telehealth and its associated technology. I understand that I may incur charges for messaging and data rates may apply as a result of using telehealth services.

I acknowledge that telehealth is not intended to function for health emergencies, and if I am having a health emergency to call 911 or seek immediate health care attention.

I consent to the use of text messaging and other forms of communication to assist in facilitating my healthcare.

I understand that I have the right to decline and/or withdraw my consent to the use of telehealth in the course of my care at any time. This will not affect my right to future care or treatment.

PATIENT CENTERED MEDICAL HOME MODEL

Juniper Health, Inc. is implementing the Patient Centered Medical Home (PCMH) model to our care for patients. The Patient Centered Medical Home model is a health care setting that provides comprehensive, coordinated and patient-centered primary care to patients of all ages. PCMH emphasizes the partnership between a patient and his or her personal physician, and when appropriate, family members.

The hallmarks of the PCMH model include comprehensive, patient-centered and coordinated care, accessible services, quality and safety:

Comprehensive Care

The patient centered medical home is accountable for meeting the large majority of each patient's physical and mental health care needs, including prevention and wellness, acute care, and chronic care. Providing comprehensive care requires a team of care providers. This team might include physicians, advanced practice nurses, physician assistants, nurses, nutritionists, social workers, educators, and care coordinators. This team links Juniper Health, Inc. and our patients to providers and services in our communities.

Patient-Centered

The patient centered medical home provides primary health care that is relationship-based with an orientation toward the whole person. Partnering with patients and their families requires understanding and respecting each patient's unique needs, culture, values, and preferences. The medical home practice actively supports patients in learning to manage and organize their own care at the level the patient chooses. Recognizing that patients and families are core members of the care team, medical home practices ensure that they are fully informed partners in establishing care plans.

Coordinated Care

The patient centered medical home coordinates care across all elements of the broader health care system, including specialty care, hospitals, home health care, and community services and supports. Such coordination is particularly critical during transitions between sites of care, such as when patients are being discharged from the hospital. Medical home practices also excel at building clear and open communication among patients and families, the medical home, and members of the broader care team. To promote clear and open communication, it is imperative that patients/families provide a complete health history and information about care obtained outside the health home.

Accessible Services

The patient centered medical home delivers accessible services with shorter waiting times for urgent needs, enhanced in-person hours, around-the- clock telephone access to a member of the care team, and alternative methods of communication, such as telephone and electronic care. The medical home practice is responsive to patients' preferences regarding access.

Quality and Safety

The patient centered medical home demonstrates a commitment to quality and quality improvement by ongoing engagement in activities such as using evidence-based medicine and clinical decision-support tools to guide shared decision making with patients and families, engaging in performance measurement and improvement, measuring and responding to patient experiences and patient satisfaction, and practicing population health management.

Juniper Health, Inc. believes the patient centered medical home model is the strongest avenue for the care of our patients. Through this model, working together with their health care team, patients are able to achieve their best quality of life. To learn more about this care model, visit www.ncqa.org.

ADVANCE DIRECTIVES

It is your right to make decisions about the health care you will receive. Those who provide you with health care services are responsible for following your wishes. However, there may be times when you may not be able to decide or make your wishes known. Many people want to decide ahead of time what kinds of treatment they want to keep them alive. Advance Directives let you make your wishes for treatment known in advance. An Advance Directive is a document written before a disabling illness. The Advance Directive states your choice about treatment and may name someone to make treatment choices if you cannot. If you have an advance directive, you increase your control over your health care treatment in the future. It also helps to ensure your right to accept or refuse health care. If you have an advance directive, it may help your family make decisions in the future because your family will know what you want and who you want to make decisions for you if you are unable to make the decisions yourself.

There are four basic types of advance directives:

1. Medical Power of Attorney - authorizes someone to make health care decisions on your behalf if you become incompetent. A Medical Power of Attorney can be a separate document or can be part of a Durable Power of Attorney. Other powers can be included in the Durable Power of Attorney authorizing someone to act on your behalf.
2. Living Will - states your wishes about the use of artificial life support to keep you alive if you are terminally ill or permanently unconscious. It also may include your wish to donate organs and tissues after your death.
3. Health Care Surrogate - you designate a person who will make health care decisions for you if you are unable to do so. This designation can be in a Power of Attorney, a Medical Power of Attorney, Living Will, and/or DNR Order.
4. DNR (Do Not Resuscitate) Order - directs that in the event of your cardiac or respiratory arrest that your wishes in the DNR Order be honored. DNR means that if your heart stops beating or if you stop breathing, no health care procedure to restart breathing or heart function will be started by emergency health care services personnel.

We must document in your health record whether or not you have executed an advance directive. If you have one, we will need a copy. We will abide by your advance directives. Care will be provided to you regardless of whether or not you have executed an advance directive. We will honor your advance directives to the extent permitted by law, and we support your right to actively participate in making health care decisions.
